JUSTICE BLACK CHALLENGED TO RENOUNCE KLAN

Sen. Walsh Calls for Open Declaration by New Member of Supreme Court.

ASKS ROOSEVELT TO ACT

Suggests Investigation of New Reports That Alabaman Is a Kluxer.

By The Associated Press
CLINTON, Mass., Sept. 14—Senator David I. Walsh, Democrat of Massachusetts, today declared Justice Hugo Black of the United States supreme court "owes it to the president, the senate and the country to declare publicly whether he is a member of the klan and to declare in unmistakable language his repudiation of the Ku Klux Klan and its principles."

"Any action in the Black appointment now must come from the president," declared Walsh, Massachusetts' senior senator. He suggested that President Roosevelt could ask an impartial agency to investigate "the alleged new evidence that he (Black) is a klansman and if it were found to be so, could "ask for his resignation."

Upholds Roosevelt

Walsh declared it "inconceivable that the President believed for one moment that Senator Black was a member of the Ku Klux Klan at the time of the appointment."

Sen. Walsh yesterday referred to published reports that Black had accepted a life membership in the klan with a statement that he had not resigned such life membership the President should ask for his resignation."

Sen. Walsh said he was not present in the senate on the day Black was confirmed, but that he was informed on his return. "That some senators voted for his confirmation because they did not want to do an any injustice in the absence of proof that he was a member of the klan.

They informed me telegrams were displayed in the senate from prominent Catholics and Hebrews of Alabama indorsing Sen. Black and inferentially denying the allegation that he was a Klansman.

This information came to me on my return, from senators with whom I communicated from by radio, requesting not to be recorded in favor of his confirmation."

Meanwhile Black maintained complete silence in London. Imperial Wizard Hiram W. Evans asserted Black's name is not on the rolls of the organization. Former Gov. Alfred E. Smith declined to join the controversy. Evans asserted in Atlanta that attacks on the newly appointed justice and former United States senator from Alabama were simply the result of a New York political issue."

This is just like any other political fight," he said. "When a candidate sees he is going to be defeated he begins to rake over coals. It will be all over when the votes are counted and I'll tell how bad Copeland was ..."

Refers To Copeland

He referred to New York's Senator Royal S. Copeland, candidate for mayor with Smith's support, who said of Black, "in honor and decency he should resign at once."

Copeland's headquarters announced that Smith, Tammany chieftain, who took the stump last ... in behalf of Copeland's candidacy for the Democratic and Republican nominations for mayor

Harry L. Beach, owner of the Oak Forest grill at 486 West ... street, annoyed by a series of minor thefts at his place of business, decided last night to lie in wait for the intruder and attempt a capture, he reported to police today.

He stated in a darkened booth along the wall, Beach heard someone approach the front door. Britain and France Speed Mighty Fleet Into Mediterranean.

MASS 60 MEN-O'-WAR

Await Italy's Decision on Offer To Share Duties at Sea.

By The Associated Press
GENEVA, Sept. 14—Nine European powers signed the Nyon pact today, binding them to a dramatic scheme to rid vital Mediterranean shipping routes of pirate submarine warfare.

Great Britain and France immediately swung into action to concentrate a mighty fleet on the inland sea.

Nine torpedo boats from the French Atlantic fleet—with fresh cargoes of supplies, including munitions, taken on at Brest—drove quickly toward their Mediterranean patrol posts.

Boost British Fleet

They augmented a formidable fleet of British warcraft already at Mediterranean stations.

Together the Anglo-French war vessels, comprising the backbone of the international fleet, will have 60 warships on patrol duty.

The nine powers await Italy's decision on an invitation to share the responsibility in arrangements for patrolling the Tyrrhenian sea, off the Italian western coast.

The accord and its vast plan for driving maritime marauders from commercial lanes becomes effective immediately, whether Italy accepts her assignment or not.

Fascists Absent

Neither Germany nor Italy, included among the 10 powers invited to Nyon by France and Britain, attended the momentous talks in the sleepy little Swiss village on Lake Geneva near here. Albania, dominated in foreign policy by Italy, also declined the invitation.

The Rome and Berlin governments rebuffed the bid in the heat of tension last week over Soviet Russia's grave accusation that Italian submarines torpedoed two Soviet merchant ships in the western Mediterranean.

The text of the protocol follows the lines of a draft approved on Saturday, zoning the Mediterranean and its lesser seas and authorizing warship members of the international police force, to sink any piracy-bent undersea craft that pokes its periscope above the waves.

The accord specifically declares there is no intention to grant belligerent rights to either side of the Spanish conflict from which the crisis sprouted—neither the Valencia republican government nor Francisco Franco's insurgent regime.

Spanish Ships Exempt

The pact, moreover, exempts Spanish merchant vessels from protection of the international patrol.

Signatories of the pact in addition to Britain and France were Russia, Rumania, Turkey, Egypt, Bulgaria, Yugoslavia and Greece.

France and Russia expressed satisfaction with the accord through their foreign ministers, but Maxim Litvinoff, the Soviet representative, took exception to the fact that protection was not extended to vessels of the Spanish government.

British Piracy Patrol More Than Doubled

By The Associated Press
LONDON, Sept. 14—Great Britain more than doubled her Mediterranean fighting strength to hunt down and sink submarine pirates today. New admiralty orders disclosed she will have 90 warships in the inland sea within a few days, compared with a regular patrol of 42.

The latest orders sent 10 men of war from home waters into the Mediterranean, to cooperate with an augmented French fleet in the piracy patrol.

The fourth destroyer flotilla, composed of eight destroyers, a light cruiser and a flotilla leader, was commanded to be ready to sail to the Mediterranean from England.

This means there are 36 British destroyers and four flotilla leaders—in addition to battleships and other heavy craft—earmarked for piracy patrol duty.

CHINESE ROUT NIPPON FLEET

Report Defeat of Enemy Squadron Following Attack on Southern Fort.

ONE SHIP HIT SQUARELY

Another Belching Smoke Where Bomb Struck as Craft Flee to Sea.

By The Associated Press
HONGKONG, Sept. 14—Chinese warplanes and the guns of Bocca Tigris forts at the entrance to the Canton river were reported today to have defeated a Japanese fleet in what was described as a major naval engagement.

A spokesman for the Kwantung provincial government said one Japanese warship was struck squarely on the bridge by a shell and another was belching clouds of smoke where it had been hit by a bomb.

The Japanese fleet of four destroyers and one cruiser attacked the Bocca Tigris forts, protecting the river entrance and the route to Canton, at 5 a. m.

Though the warships rained shells around the forts, the damage was said to have been negligible. Most of the shots were reported to have fallen far short of their mark.

Japs Attack Foe's Second Line

SHANGHAI, Sept. 14—The Japanese army splashed forward through a torrential rain today in a massed attack against Chinese second line positions northwest of Shanghai.

A Japanese spokesman reported that the strong fortifications at the Chinese civic center of Kiangwan had been occupied and the Japanese troops had pushed deep into the delta. The muddy roads were jammed with Japanese reinforcements moving up to bolster the assault against the new Chinese line.

Heavy artillery and tanks slithered across country behind the advancing Japanese infantry in the flooded delta lands.

New horror was added to the tragic story of undeclared war at Shanghai when the Chinese central news agency reported 400 civilian war refugees had been killed or wounded by Japanese bombs rained on the flimsy sailing boats in which they were fleeing the city.

Three of the boats were said to have been sunk and six damaged. The undefended decks of the open boats were crowded with frightened Chinese, huddled among their luggage and portable possessions.

After their four-mile retirement last night, the Chinese forces took up their new positions extending in almost a straight northwest line from Shanghai's north station for 30 miles to the banks of the Yangtze river above Liuho.

"PIRATE" SUB REPORTED ON OCEAN FLOOR

Location of sub

Italian submarine

Possible solution to the identity of "pirate" submarines which have been molesting Mediterranean shipping was seen in the report that one of the mysterious crafts was lying on the ocean floor off Cartagena, Spanish southern naval base. It was believed that the submarine was damaged by depth bombs dropped by government warships and was unable to rise to the surface. Identification of the craft would tend to confirm or refute Russian charges that the "pirate" submarines were Italian. (International News photo).

THREE BRITISH SUBJECTS BECOME CITIZENS OF U. S

Marion and Morral Residents Naturalized in Impressive Ceremonies at Courthouse.

Three subjects of King George VI of England became citizens of the United States yesterday afternoon in impressive ceremonies in common pleas court. The ceremonies were presided over by Judge Hector S. Young with P. B. McHugh of the regional immigration office at Cincinnati as examiner.

The three new American citizens are Mr. and Mrs. Daniel J. McDonald of 176 Chicago avenue and Robert John Steen of Morral R. D. No. 2. They were sworn in after examination by Clerk of Courts Carl F. Haberman.

Following their induction, Miss Louise Cunningham, representing the Capt. William Hendricks chapter of Daughters of the American Revolution, welcomed them as new citizens and presented them with small American flags and booklets describing the American form of government.

Well Pleased With U. S.

"As we look on the world today we see many nations involved in turmoil and strife and we are thankful that we live in a peaceful country," she said.

Miss Cunningham reminded them of the 150th anniversary of the adoption of the Constitution which will be observed Friday.

"We think you have chosen the best country in the world in which to make your homes. We hope you are happy here."

Judge Young also welcomed the three into citizenship and said the country appreciates people of high type becoming American citizens.

Mr. Steen, who came to Marion county in 1920 from County Tyrone, Ireland, his birthplace, was the first to be examined. Mr. and Mrs. McDonald were admitted together. Mr. McDonald is a native of Prince Edward Island in the St. Lawrence gulf, Canada, and Mrs. McDonald was born in Roschdale, Manitoba.

Sample Questions

Among the questions asked by Mr. McHugh of the candidates were:

What is the difference between British and American government? What are the two houses of congress? How are congressmen and senators apportioned? Who are the Ohio senators? Who is our congressman? Who are electors? Must the president be a native citizen? What are the three branches of government? What is the function of the branches? How many amendments to the Constitution are there? How are laws made? How does the veto operate? How are state judges put into office? Federal judges? What is the Constitution? Are you an anarchist or a communist? Are you willing to surrender your allegiance to your former sovereign and to bear arms for the United States? How is the king of England chosen? Is Judge Young elected?

New Applicants

Later in the afternoon Mr. McHugh supervised the making of applications for citizenship by three other residents of the county. They were Philipp Heinrich Nickel, farmer of near Prospect, native of Germany; Alfred Michiel LaPierre of 269 Uhler avenue, native of Montreal, and Watson M. Ireland of Oak street, native of Canada.

One of the last three, because he had voted in the county for the last 40 years and been active in politics under the impression he was a citizen, was required to make an affidavit to that effect.

Among the audience at the naturalization ceremonies were several members of the Daughters of the American Revolution. The ceremonies are held here usually every September and occasionally in January.

Her death came suddenly and as a shock to her family. Sunday morning Mrs. Hoover attended services at the First Presbyterian church and in the afternoon went riding with the Bindley family. Mrs. Hoover came to Marion about a year following the death of her husband in 1914 at their home in Hartford City, Ind. Schaffner Co. It was located in the same building on South Main street which the Schaffner Co. now occupies.

Jr. Horse Pulling Contest Wednesday Fair Feature

53 Teams To Be Driven in First Event of Kind in Ohio.

Arrangements were completed today for the Ohio-Indiana junior horse pulling contest, the first event of its kind ever held in Ohio, to be presented Wednesday afternoon and night as the opening attraction of the eighty-seventh annual Marion county fair.

Fifty-three teams with boy and girl drivers whose ages range from 8 to 18 years are entered in the contest, which is to start at 1 p. m. in front of the grandstand.

A huge street parade in the uptown district with all teams taking part is to precede the contest. The parade is to be formed at the Millard Hunt Co. on North Prospect street, move south to Center street, east to State and north to the fairgrounds. The Harding High school band and the Bucheeth four-horse hitch from Columbus will lead the parade.

When competition starts at 1 p. m., the teams will be divided into lightweight and heavyweight divisions, and elimination rounds will be conducted in each division. The contest is conducted by giving each team a opportunity to pull a sled loaded with concrete blocks. The weight on the sled is gradually increased, and through elimination heats the contestants are reduced in number.

Finals At Night

The finals of the contest will be staged at night, beginning at 8 o'clock. The night program will be preceded by half an hour of music by the Harding High school band and will be followed by a display of fireworks.

Formal opening of the fair today found hundreds of persons busy with preparations for entertaining the thousands expected to visit the grounds for a four-day program to be started Wednesday.

Although Tuesday is considered as part of the fair program, no entertainment is provided on the grounds, and no admission charge is collected.

Early this morning, exhibits from all parts of the county and nearby counties began pouring in, commercial exhibit booths began to take form and concession men put the finishing touches on their equipment and shows in preparation for Wednesday's crowds.

Start On Junior Fair

Activity was expected to increase as the day progressed, reaching a climax late this afternoon when hundreds of boys and girls from all parts of the county arrive at the fairgrounds after school to help complete the junior fair exhibits. A number of workers were excused from classes today to help with the fair.

Fair officials said they are "completely satisfied" with the prospects for this year's fair and added that the only thing needed is "weather that's about 25 to 30 degrees warmer." However, they said they feel satisfied chilly weather will not keep fair crowds away.

Thursday will bring the Kiwanis pet lamb show at 11 a. m. and the first session of a three-day ... program. Also, the ... [illegible]

CZECH 'FATHER' DIES

DR. T. G. MASARYK

CZECH FOUNDER MASARYK DIES

First President of New Republic Succumbs to Long Illness in 87th Year.

CALLED "LITTLE FATHER"

Served as Head of Nation from 1918 to 1935 When Age Brought Retirement.

By The Associated Press
PRAHA, CZECHOSLOVAKIA, Sept. 14—Dr. Thomas G. Masaryk, grand old man of Czechoslovakia and founder of the republic, today lost his long fight against death which he regarded as the "common enemy of mankind." He was 87 years old.

The "little father of Czechoslovakia" had been critically ill since Sept. 2. Last week he rallied slightly but on Sunday night his condition took a sudden turn and he lapsed into unconsciousness.

Flags in Praha and at the chateau de Lany, the residence given Dr. Masaryk by the people, were half-staffed. The country folk among whom he had lived his last years uncovered their heads and bent their knees in silent prayer.

Heads New Born State

Masaryk became president of the Czechoslovakian state when it was born in 1918. He was reelected in 1920, 1927 and again in 1934. In December, 1935, advancing age compelled him to resign and turn over the presidency to Benes, his disciple and colleague.

He retired to the chateau de Lany and during his final years lived the quiet life of a country squire.

For the past several years his birthday on March 7 has been an occasion for national celebration, observed by his countrymen throughout the world.

He said his chief bitterness upon retiring was that his age no longer permitted him his favorite diversions of wrestling and dancing.

Motion Against Appeal of Suit to Common Pleas Court Adopted Unanimously.

FINAL ENTRY DRAWN

Court Order Calling for Return of Equipment Seized in Raid Due To Be Filed Today.

City council voted to drop the Palace theatre sweepstakes case, in a motion adopted unanimously at a regular meeting last night.

The motion also called for return of the sweepstakes equipment police seized in a raid on the theater Aug. 18.

Final entries disposing of the case were to be filed in municipal court this afternoon. City Solicitor Ralph E. Carhart said a journal entry tentatively prepared contained an order that the equipment be turned over to the theater, and that this probably would be done this afternoon.

These developments were followed by announcement by George E. Planck, manager of the Palace, that the sweepstakes game will be resumed.

The case came before council last night in a statement by City Solicitor Carhart to learn if council wished to provide approximately $50 to carry the case to the common pleas court for a decision on the legality of the game.

The solicitor informed council that George E. Planck, theater manager, had been found not guilty, but that the question of the legality of the game remained uncertain due to a clause in Judge William R. Martin's charge to the jury. The judge's charge, he said, held the game to be illegal. However, to definitely determine the legality of the game, it would be necessary to carry the case to common pleas court on error, at an expense of around $50 to the city, he explained.

"We didn't start this thing in the first place—I personally don't think we should do anything more about it," Councilman Don R. Biggert said. He then introduced a motion that the city take no further action in the sweepstakes case and that the equipment confiscated by police be returned to the theater. It was seconded by Councilman Hayes L. Rogers and adopted unanimously.

Would Leave It To Court

Mayor Frederick C. Smith, later in the meeting, appeared before council and commented on its action, asserting he is of the opinion that the court's entry in the case should cover the disposal of the confiscated equipment and that the court order, rather than council's suggestion, should be followed.

"I personally think the equipment should be returned to the theater as quickly as possible, but I feel the disposition of it should be determined by the court, or that it should be done on proper legal advice," he said.

The mayor also took exceptions to Judge Martin's charge to the jury in the sweepstakes case, declaring, "I'm not a lawyer, but I question Judge Martin's right to say to a jury that Mr. Planck should be found guilty. I feel that our constitutional law set up the jury system to prevent such a thing."

"The jury," he continued, "was virtually instructed to bring in a verdict of guilty, but it found Mr. Planck not guilty. The equipment was seized on the basis that the sweepstakes game was gambling, but the jury decided sweepstakes is not gambling.

"My purpose in pointing out these things is to make it clear how far council can go in this matter. ... [illegible]

... In appealing the sweepstakes case to council, the city solicitor ... carrying the case to a higher court to determine the legality of sweepstakes would have a bearing on the status of business promotion plans ... operated by other business places. He pointed out that authorities would have little basis for attempting to halt similar games or business promotion ideas if nothing further were done in the Palace case.

The city solicitor also brought up the question of ... [illegible] ... council did not include ...

DUFFY DENIES RUSSELL MARINO SLAYINGS LINKED

Will Call Special Grand Juries in Major Ohio Cities Within Two Weeks To Get at Bottom of Parole Problem.

By The Associated Press

COLUMBUS, O, Sept 14—Atty Gen Herbert S. Duffy declared today that thorough investigation of the slaying of Mike Russell in Wheeling, W. Va., disclosed it had no connection with the "ride" slaying of Roy (Happy) Marino near Youngstown Friday.

The attorney general said that on the basis of information from the prosecutor's office at Youngstown yesterday he had believed the two killings—a fortnight apart—were connected in some manner, but reported today that they were not linked

Busy investigating the entire Ohio parole system, Duffy said he was temporarily withdrawing his investigators from the actual death of Marino, Youngstown gambler who served part of a bank robbery sentence before winning a commutation from former Gov George White

Duffy said, however, that he was pressing forward with all speed in the parole inquiry, and that he expected to summon special grand juries within the next two weeks in Youngstown, Canton, Cleveland and possibly Toledo, Cincinnati and Columbus

An aid from the attorney general's office will be in charge of each grand jury's proceedings, he said

Duffy recently asked Gov. Martin L. Davey for permission to call grand juries in any counties he wished so as to subpoena witnesses in the parole investigation. The power to subpoena would not otherwise be his.

Indications were that use of grand juries also would help in the financial side of the work, since $1,000 allotted to the attorney general by the state emergency board was running low

Although Gov. Davey has not formally granted approval for the grand juries he said last week that "of course" he would do so Duffy intended asking him again tomorrow for this formal sanction.

The attorney general said he had made no report to the governor as yet on his investigation, which was ordered by Davey, but that he expected to make a partial report tomorrow on a fatal gunbattle near Springfield in which three paroled convicts were involved.

A report on the full inquiry will not be made until all is completed, he declared.

BILLION IN CREDIT SEEN BY OCTOBER

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON, Sept. 14—Credit-easing activities of the treasury and federal reserve board should boost bank supplies of lendable money to the billion-dollar mark by October, officials said today.

Secretary Morgenthau threw into operation his part of the two-way, low-interest credit program late yesterday, freeing $300,000,000 of gold from the treasury's hitherto-unused "sterilized" account.

Certificates against the gold, Morgenthau said, were issued to federal reserve banks which credited the treasury with $300,000,000 of deposits. The treasury chief said the deposits will be withdrawn to meet general treasury obligations and to retire $50,000,000 discount bill issues maturing weekly.

This operation, he said, will speed a stream of cash into the nation's banking structure, hiking the supply of lendable money.

NEW YORK, Sept. 14—Nancy Carroll, red-haired film star, sought by court action today to compel her former husband, Bolton Mallory, to sign over to her $50,000 in stocks.

When they were divorced in 1935, Miss Carroll asserted, she managed to salvage most of the stock certificates but they remained registered in Mallory's name.

BLACK CHALLENGED TO RENOUNCE KLAN

in Thursday's primary would express his views on the Black matter in a political speech tomorrow night.

While the controversy raged, Justice Black, vacationing in Europe, seemingly was content to let members of the administration answer the attack He has been silent since the charge first was brought up in the senate following his appointment. When reached in London, he refused to comment on a newspaper article that he had been a member of the klan, had resigned and subsequently had become a life member

The article which precipitated the new verbal storm originated with the Pittsburgh Post-Gazette and was distributed by the North American Newspaper Alliance.

Agree He'll Stay

Several senators who voted "no" when the senate confirmed Black's nomination by an overwhelming vote, agreed that his position as a member of the supreme court was secure. Sen Arthur H. Vandenberg, Republican of Michigan, suggested the senate should reopen the matter of Black's confirmation if "unequivocal proof" linked him with the klan.

A third Democrat, Sen. Prentiss M Brown of Michigan, said he would not have voted for Black's confirmation to the court had he believed the Alabaman was a klansman.

"I certainly think a man who is a member of such an organization is too bigoted to serve on the bench," said Brown.

At the summer White House in Hyde Park, N. Y., President Roosevelt was silent on this new attack upon his appointee.

"Not Now," Says Evans

But, while the President himself had no comment, the administration itself went at once to the defense of the justice.

The department of justice issued a statement saying Black's "suitability" was "beyond question," as evidenced by "his record of public service and selection on two occasions by the state of Alabama as United States senator"

Sen. M. M. Logan, a Kentucky Democrat and an administrationist, pooh-poohed the furore, saying the whole attack was designed to attract "New York votes."

"While I am quite sure Justice Black is not a member of the Ku Klux Klan, what would we do if he were? I have never heard of any justice being required to resign because of affiliations with any organization he may have chanced to join," said Logan.

Sees Nothing to Be Done

Sen. King, Democrat of Utah, said membership in any organization, "reprehensible though it might be," was not ground for disqualifying a justice.

"Nothing can be done about it now in my opinion," he added.

Sen. Wagner, Democrat of New York, Copeland's colleague and as emphatic in following Mr. Roosevelt's leadership as Copeland has been in dissenting from it, said he could support "no man for public office who subscribes to the bigoted views of an organization like the Ku Klux Klan."

He had voted for Black's confirmation, he added, "in the belief he was not a member of the klan. If he were a member of the klan and I knew of it I would not have voted for his confirmation."

Sen. Clyde L. Herring, Democrat of Iowa, said he would not have voted to confirm Black if the reports had been shown to be true.

Farmers Cut Off Power Poles In Utilities Fight

Guard Ground Claiming New Line Would Bar REA Project.

By The Associated Press

BELLEVUE, O., Sept 14—Picket lines of angry farmers stood guard today after cutting down poles and half a mile of wire in the nearby rural district of Fireside, O.

Fifteen newly placed power poles were sawed off, three others had been pulled out of the ground and newly strung cables strewn aside.

More than 100 men and a few women went into action and they said more were rallying to the fight between members of the North Central Farm Bureau Co-operative organization and the Lake Erie Power & Light Co

The farmers fear that a new mile-long line will prevent them from obtaining service under the rural electrification administration program

The power company put 90 men on the line and rushed it to completion late yesterday. During the night the ruralites rallied to the scene with saws and lanterns and flashlights and did their work.

They expressed intention today of mounting guard until an injunction suit is heard Wednesday in Tiffin the county seat

Sheriff Vern F. Deals visited the scene, said the situation was quiet and there was nothing he could do.

The dispute has been under way for more than a week. The power company filed suit for an injunction to prevent 49 farmers from interfering with erection of the lines

Ralph Williams, representative of the Ohio Farm Bureau and one of the defendants, said the consumers want rural electrification service and would be "bottled up" by the company's new project.

One of the protesting women clasped her arms around a pole to prevent linemen from ascending. Last week sheriff's deputies were called to rescue a lineman who was marooned atop a pole by angry demonstrators.

COUNCIL VOTE ENDS SWEEPSTAKES CASE

mention of these cases in its motion

Talk About Hog Farm

Among other matters before council last night was the renting of the city hog farm. F. C. Ketner of Columbus, who said he represented a cooperative group of livestock raisers in this vicinity that have been operating the city hog farm on the Agosta road, feeding city garbage to hogs to fatten them for market, pointed out the group's lease of the farm expired Sept. 14, and asked if a continuation of the lease contract could be arranged.

City Solicitor Ralph E. Carhart told council it would be impossible, so far as he could discover from referring to statutes, for council to give any lease of the farm without first advertising for five weeks for competitive bids and awarding the lease to the high bidder. This would put the date of awarding the lease late in October, and the question of what would be done with the city's daily output of garbage was raised. Mr. Ketner said the city's garbage is now running as high as seven truckloads daily.

He said the operators of the farm might suffer a loss if they continued to feed hogs there after the contract expired today, but would continue to operate the farm if they felt a renewal could be arranged.

Council's only action in the matter was to adopt an ordinance authorizing Safety-Service Director John V. Ruth to advertise for bids for lease of the city farm and purchase of the city's garbage for five weeks. Mayor Frederick C. Smith said he would meet with Mr. Ketner today in an effort to work out a plan to operate the farm until a new lease can be made

Would Limit Parking

At the suggestion of Councilman Harry Cahill, council adopted a motion authorizing preparation of an ordinance prohibiting parking in the east side of Pearl street from Church street south to the first alley, and on the east side of Leader street between Center street and the overhead railroad crossing.

Councilman Cahill also reported that a survey showed the C. & O. and New York Central railroads and the Marion Steam Shovel Co. had made extensive improvements in their railroad crossings in the city, in line with previous recommendations by council and asked that the city clerk write letters commending them for the improvements. He also asked that letters be sent reminding the Erie and Pennsylvania railroads of the improvements council had suggested, explaining that the latter two companies had done "little, if anything" toward carrying out the recommendations.

Council referred to its street and alley committee a petition of a group of Clover avenue residents asking for a WPA project to construct a curb and gutter on the street between Center and Church streets.

When councilmen inquired what had been done with a petition that was presented several months ago for a sidewalk, curb and gutter on Edgewood drive, Mayor Smith promised the matter would be given attention today. Arrangements also were to be made to give immediate attention to the request of a group of Columbia street residents for a sewer improvement. In both of these proposed improvements, property owners have indicated a willingness to pay all expenses, officials said.

Marion Gridders Preparing For Openers This We

Harding, St. Mary Coaches Groom Huskies For 1937

60 Candidates Vie for Cramer's Varsity Posts for Friday Tilt; Parochial School Opens at LaRue.

MORE than four-score potential varsity gridiron candidates went through practice workouts on two fields last night as mentors at both Harding High and St. Mary Parochial High schools prepped their stalwarts for the season's inaugural games this week. In both grid camps the coaches began tapering off from the strenuous workouts which have been the order of the day since Sept. 1, the official opening of the scholastic training season.

Both Harding's Presidents and the St. Mary team, which is the Parochial school's first football representative in 13 years, will take part in opening games this week. The Harding team will entertain the Mt. Gilead Indians under the floodlights of Harding stadium, Friday night. St. Mary will begin its competition against other schools with a practice encounter at LaRue, Thursday afternoon.

* * *

Coach Carl Cramer and Assistants Bill Williams and George Nieml form the board of strategy that has been handling the workouts of some 60 athletes contending for positions on the first string roster of the Harding High team. The mentors have been ironing out the rough spots of possible varsity combinations, all built round nine returning lettermen; and at the same time keeping an eye on the less experienced candidates who may work into the first string line-up.

Friday night's inaugural of Harding's 10-game schedule will break open the activity which will find the Cramermen active on as many consecutive week-ends, either on the home field or abroad. Six of the 10 contests will be played at Harding High stadium, with the possibility that the majority of the home encounters will be played as nocturnal affairs.

Cramer's returning line veterans are expected to boost the average weight of Harding's forward wall to the highest peak in recent years, in the neighborhood of 165 pounds. Experienced backfield men, augmented by a fresh supply of material from the city's three junior high schools should turn out speedy and accurate combinations.

Students Enthusiastic

Detailed plans for the Friday night opener are under full swing at Harding High school and athletic officials point with pride to the unusual amount of enthusiasm being displayed both among the football candidates and the student body. Lights at the stadium, dismantled at the close of last season, were to be restored and adjusted early this week in order for the team to practice under the incandescents before the first night game.

Head Coach Cramer last night centered his activity on a defensive pass workout with the potential Marion backfield. Assistant Bill Williams handled the group of linemen and Assistant Niemi directed the activity of the vast store of reserve material. The gridders have been holding their practice sessions on the field just north of Harding stadium and will move onto the actual playing turf for tune-up workouts, Wednesday and Thursday nights.

Lettermen Coming Back

Returning lettermen will form the nucleus of Harding's 1937 team. Jack Stephenson and Paul Fick, regulars last year, will act as co-captains of the club. Stephenson was at a tackle post

Twenty-three athletes have regularly answered the call for practice workouts at the St. Mary Parochial High grid camp under the direction of Coach Robert Kelly. Although none of the youths have had previous game experience the squad appeared well-versed in grid fundamentals and plays during a long scrimmage session on the Silk Mill field last night.

Coach Kelly faces the task of whipping green material into a successful combination. Five games have already been definitely scheduled for the Irish eleven with the possibility that several other contests will be added to the fall program.

Although the Thursday afternoon game at LaRue will not go into the record books, mentors at both schools will have an opportunity to see their proteges face the first opposition of the year. The game, to be played on the LaRue field, is scheduled to start at 3 o'clock and a vanguard of interested fans are expected to be on hand to watch the unofficial workout.

Resumes After 13 Years

St. Mary, at one time active on the gridiron, abandoned the pigskin sport in 1924. Reasons given at the time for the abandonment were two-fold, the lack of sufficient material to carry on the sport and a large number of injuries which players sustained that season. One of the outstanding members of the 1924 team, Ray Navin, later attended the University of Detroit, where he received football letters three consecutive years.

Only one of the five games scheduled at present has been booked to be played in Marion, with St. Mary traveling to Tiffin, Crestline and Carey. Fostoria St. Wendelin will furnish the opposition for the single home game that is already on the St. Mary schedule. The program this season will likely include several other games, but St. Mary officials have encountered difficulty in booking contests because potential opponents had already completed their schedules.

The movement to renew St. Mary's activity on the gridiron came last April when formal action was taken following the meeting of the athletic board composed of Rev. Father William J. Spickerman, L. A. Axe, Dr. F. V. Murphy, Dr. A. J. Wagner, Thomas Andrews, Paul Malloy and Coach Kelly. The addition of the grid sport to the school's program gives it two lines of athletic activity in addition to the regular class sports schedule, which has been followed during past seasons.

List of Athletes

Among the 23 atheltes vieing for positions on the St. Mary team, are five athletes who last year won recognition in basketball. The basketball letter men, Walter Drake, Henry Drake, Jack Schuler, James Feldner and Louis Myers, head the list of potential varsity gridmen. Other varsity candidates are James Drake, Grazio Piacentino, Gene Fetter, Ralph Nicolosi, Carl Werley, Warren Kerrigan, Steve Byrnes, Ray Murphy, Frank Terzo, William Norris, Nick Cafagno, Jasper LaBarbara, Raymond Robbins, Jack McAndrew, Ted Schuler, Anthony Totaro, Dick Norris, Frank Huber.

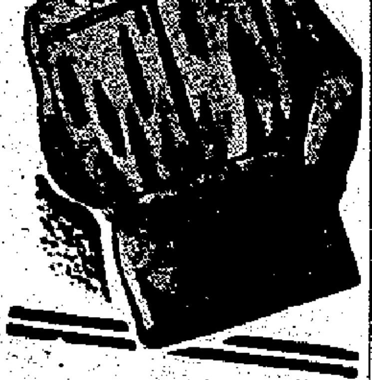

When the team takes the field at LaRue, Thursday afternoon, the St. Mary gridders will don for the first time their complete and new game uniforms. The outfits consist of gray whipcord pants, black jersies with white numerals and black and white headgear, in keeping with the school colors.

The schedule of the St. Mary team, as it has been completed up to today, follows: Sept. 14—Practice game at LaRue; Sept. 24—at Tiffin Calvert; Oct. 1—at Crestline; Oct. 22—at Carey; Nov. 5—Fostoria St. Wendelin here.

MARYSVILLE COACH CHANGES SCHEDULE

Special to The Star

MARYSVILLE, Sept. 14—Coach Jerry Kingsmore announced Monday that the open date on the Marysville High school football schedule has been filled with the booking of Upper Sandusky for a game here Oct. 22.

At the same time, it was said that in all probability Marysville will play at Bellefontaine Armistice day instead of the Logan county eleven playing at the local gridiron. A big celebration is planned at Bellefontaine and for that reason Bellefontaine is asking that the game be played there.

Marysville's schedule for the season now calls for four games here and five away from home. Mifflin will open the season here this Friday. Delaware comes here on Oct. 8; Upper Sandusky on Oct. 22 and Urbana on Oct. 29.

GIANTS, CUBS BEGIN FINAL TITLE SPRINT IN NATIONAL LEAGUE

New York Pitching Staff Patched Up for Tour of West.

By BILL BONI
Associated Press Sports Writer

To the utter confusion of tin pan alley, the Giants and Cubs have their eyes wide open, but they're definitely not dreaming. There's too much pressing business.

That business started today, and with a pronounced bang. The Giants, a game and a half in front, stacked up in a twin bill against the Pirates, while the Cubs jumped into an 11-game home stand with two against the Bees.

Carl Hubbell and Al Smith, two of his three southpaws, were ready for today's calls, with Hal Schumacher, whose sudden recovery of control has been such a big help, Cliff Melton, the first-year man who's an all-year sensation, and Harry Gumbert in line for future starting assignments.

The Giants, with 24 games to go and three less defeats than the Cubs, play only six at home. The Bruins, to make things tougher, have 14 of their 21 remaining engagements at Wrigley field.

Right now everything points to three poker hands—full houses—when the Giants move into the Cub park a week from today for a three-game stay. Those games very well may be the clinchers in a race that, from a standpoint of conclusions definitely arrived at, might as well be starting all over again as going into the final three week's drive.

There is a possibility, however, that either contender will walk into the world series over a doormat laid down by their respective "stooges." The Terrymen, who have beaten Brooklyn in 12 out of 15 tries, close out the year with three appearances in Flatbush. The Cubs, having won 12 of 15 from the Cards, will meet them in six of their last 10 games.

A. A. PLAYOFF SERIES TO START TONIGHT

Columbus To Entertain Millers While Toledo Plays Host to Brewers.

By The Associated Press

CHICAGO, Sept. 14—The American association playoff battle involving four teams opens on two fronts tonight.

At Columbus, the championship Red Birds entertain the third-place Minneapolis Millers in the first of a four best out of seven series. At the same time, Toledo, which made a spirited bid for first place but fell one game short of tying Columbus, in the regular schedule, plays host to the fourth place Milwaukee Brewers, who won the title in 1936.

Max Macon will hurl for Columbus and probably be opposed either by Charlie Wagner or Walt Tauscher. For Toledo, the veteran Fred Marberry was scheduled to oppose Milwaukee's George Blaeholder.

The winners of the two initial series meet in a four of seven affair, with the winner opposing the winner of the International league playoffs, which open today.

ST. MARY, WESLEY TO PLAY TILT TONIGHT

St. Mary and Wesley, winners of the No. 1 and 2 Sunday school leagues, will play tonight at 6 p. m. to decide which team will meet the Steam Shovel in the final game of the "little world series." The two teams battled to a 4-4 tie a week ago.

The Shovel team holds victories over both aggregations and needs only one victory to win the city title. Woody Walters will be on the mound for Wesley tonight and either Gunder or F. Robbins will pitch for St. Mary. The winner will meet the Shovel nine Thursday night.

Here is the first of a series of five booster sketches by one of Marion's best known and most enthusiastic sports fans, written to help rally Marionites in support of the Harding High school football team during the coming season. As indicated in this first article, he looks for a victorious season, a view shared by all local sports followers.

By DAN L. LA MARCHE

BY all the signs, seven years on the losing end of Marion's football team is at an end.

You can try numerology or the older belief in seven-years-feast-seven-years-famine, but whatever you believe in, the Marion team is on the upgrade.

Whatever may be said, just remember: The Marion Team Is On the Winning End NOW!

In the first place—and it's no news—the boys have been on the losing end too long. Seven years is quite long enough, isn't it? Surely, too long!

In the second place, the WPA and a good many alphabetical organizations which have come up since the last time our home town shone from the front pages of the nation have created not only an athletic field for us but have helped to build—never mind the cost in this day when too many Americans have lost their pride in self support—a stadium the like of which Marion or few towns of its size have ever known.

And so we stand here today with an acreage big enough not only to hold a high school, a baseball field, and the present football field with its fine stadium, but we have a team now second to none Marion has ever turned out.

Let's GO.

IT'S HERE—FOOTBALL

Typical of football players everywhere is the triple-threat man pictured above. He is Andy Uram, Minnesota's star back, getting into trim for the season.

MAXIE FARR RATED BEST CHALLENGERS

By The Associated Press

WHITE SULPHUR SPRINGS, W. Va., Sept. 14—Germany's Max Schmeling and Tommy Farr of Wales were rated today by the National Boxing association as the best of the challengers for Joe Louis' heavyweight crown.

Schmeling, who holds a knockout victory over the Brown Bomber, and Farr, defeated in his first title quest two weeks ago, ranked well above former champion Jimmy Braddock in the NBA's official ratings.

ONLY 7 MAJOR LOOP MANAGERS SURE OF JOBS AS AXES FALL

Cincinnati's Chuck Dressen Gets Ouster; O'Neill Status in Doubt.

By The Associated Press

NEW YORK, Sept. 14—Here's the major league managerial situation, as it stands today in relation to 1938 job-holding prospects:

Signed and sealed: Bill Terry, New York Giants, new five-year contract as general manager, calling for estimated $40,000 yearly; Mickey Cochrane, Detroit Tigers, new two-year contract at estimated $30,000 per annum; Charley Grimm, Chicago Cubs, new one-year contract; Burleigh Grimes, Brooklyn Dodgers, new one-year $15,000 contract; Jimmie Dykes, Chicago White Sox, new two-year contract.

Hold-overs: Joe Cronin, Boston Red Sox, two years more on five-year contract; Connie Mack, Philadelphia Athletics, who has life-time job.

Already out: Rogers Hornsby, St. Louis Browns, ousted July 21 and replaced for balance of season by Jim Bottomley; Chuck Dressen, Cincinnati Reds, unconditionally released yesterday.

Unsigned but due for renewals: Joe McCarthy, New York Yankees, whose two-year contract expires this season; Bill McKechnie, Boston Bees; Jimmy Wilson, Philadelphia Phillies; Bucky Harris, Washington Senators.

Unsigned and status in doubt: Steve O'Neill, Cleveland Indians; Pie Traynor, Pittsburgh Pirates; and Frank Frisch, St. Louis Cardinals.

On the basis of this summary, only seven of the 16 managers are certain of their 1938 status. Not all of the others are worrying, however.

The Cincinnati Reds went into a doubleheader with Brooklyn today under a new temporary pilot.

Charlie "Chuck" Dressen, released of his managerial duties he held for three years, packed his belongings at the clubhouse and said he had no definite plans for the future beyond "I still will continue in baseball."

General Manager Warren C. Giles named Bobby Wallace, who has spent nearly 50 years in baseball, as acting pilot.

Coaches Tom Sheehan and George Kelly, who Dressen once insisted remain with the club over managerial protests, also were given their unconditional releases.

Speculation turned today to Dressen's successor but Giles said the appointment would not be considered "until after the world series." The sudden dismissal announcement nevertheless started baseball circles to guessing between Manager Jimmy Wilson of the Philadelphia Phillies, Casey Stengel, former Dodger's pilot, Rabbit Maranville of the Montreal International club, and Frank "Lefty" O'Doul, field general of the San Francisco Seals.

"We have the money to get the best man available," commented Powel Crosley, Jr., owner of the last place National league club.

Giles reiterated that a complete revamping of the team would be made this winter.

NENOFF, VON BROM WIN HECTIC MAT

Bulgaria's bad man, Steve Nenoff won by default over Jackle Nichols of West Palm Beach, Fla., and a disqualification gave Count Von Bromberg of Germany a victory over Boston's Gil LaCrosse, in the featured scraps of last night's session of grunt and groan artists at the Marion Steam Shovel gymnasium.

Action aplenty, both inside and outside the ring, and a fight to the finish between Count Von Bromberg and Gil LaCrosse, which broke out even after the pair had returned to the dressing room, made last night's session of the break-it-off society one of the most hectic in recent weeks.

As dyed-in-the-wool addicts expected, the tough Boston sailor, Gil LaCrosse, opened his display with the initial bell. No sissy himself, the German returned the fisticuffs on equal terms, but lost the first round on a hammerlock and muscle pounder at the end of 15 minutes.

LaCrosse tried for the same hold at the start of the second fall but the Count turned on the steam with an airplane spin and tamed the burly Bostonian with an armbreaker over the ropes. LeCrosse found that biting the German was apparently the wrong thing to do when the Count broke loose and slugged the ex-gob to the floor, polishing him off with a series of body slams. The Count scored the fall at the end of four minutes with a crab hold.

The decisive round was only four minutes old when LaCrosse's fanfare of rough tactics led Referee Verne Clark to step in and hand the Bostonian a knockout blow in the form of a disqualification. LaCrosse had slugged his opponent from the ring and punted Von Bromberg into the laps of second row spectators as he attempted to return. LaCrosse wrapped the German's body in the rope strands and when the disqualification came Von Bromberg's hand was lifted from a maze of entangled ropes.

The pair carried their grudge to the dressing room and although their wasn't a witness to the hostilities, Von Bromberg was found with a bridge table draped around his neck, indicating that his ring friendship with LaCrosse apparently is not of the best. LaCrosse practically convicted himself of the attack on the German

PATTERN 4563

The Stars Say—

For Wednesday, Sept 15

THE AUGURIES for this day point to exceedingly important and memorable events, with great tension and activity in all departments of human interest. All are under high stimuli for constructive efforts, which will respond in preferment, honors, increase of finances, enhanced popularity and prestige, with an enlargement of scope and opportunity for the achievement of very lofty ambitions. It is a propitious time for pushing for such goals, possibly with cleverness, strategem and persuasion rather than directness or dogged determination. Be careful with speech and be alert to treachery in personal contacts as well as business.

Those whose birthday it is may find themselves in a year of major events, with important developments in both the business and private lives. Matters will all be under high pressure for father strenuous action in the direction of progress, prestige and prosperity. For such lofty achievements it is recommended that tact, strategem and shrewdness be employed rather than drastic or tumultuous demeanor. Be alert to craft and subterfuge in all relations.

A child born on this day may be brilliantly equipped for a successful, powerful and distinguished career, doubtless high in power, popularity and public service. It may become a politician or strategist.

STOCKS RALLY 1 TO 5 POINTS

Some Up 10 as Big Push Upward Follows Major Slump of Yesterday.

By The Associated Press

NEW YORK, Sept 14—Stocks smashed through selling barriers in today's market for one of the best rallies since the start of the recent slide

The list pushed up at the beginning, hesitated on the appearance of more offerings, then swung into a forward stride that carried leaders up one to five points generally and a few 10 or so.

There was little in the international or domestic news pictures to account for the swift reversal and brokers ascribed it principally to the belief of trading forces that the market had been definitely "oversold" and was due for at least a temporary change of heart

Bonds were selectively improved and grain and cotton futures displayed rising tendencies

Prominent on the jaunt were shares of U. S Steel, Bethlehem, Youngstown Sheet & Tube, Republic, Wheeling Steel, Chrysler, General Motors, U S Rubber, Goodyear, Sears Roebuck, International Harvester, American Telephone, Anaconda, American Smelting, Westinghouse and Continental Can

Numerous margin calls went out last night and it was said to be problematical just how much liquidating resulted from these or would ensue later. The morning's push however, pulled many commission house customers out of the "frozen" category

While Wall Street wished to minimize happenings in the far east and Mediterranean, it was not overlooked that the President summoned his cabinet members to a meeting to discuss tenseness of foreign affairs

Second thoughts on the government's pumping of sterilized gold into the nation's credit supply brought opinions other steps might be taken by the authorities if markets get out of hand in either direction.

Some commentators advanced the suggestion the market has been more pessimistic than actual conditions warranted.

SCIOTO, SANDUSKY SURVEY CALLED OFF

Lack of funds will prevent the war department from making its flood control survey of the Scioto and Sandusky rivers, it was learned today from a dispatch from Washington. The report states that the work will be delayed until next year at least.

Army engineers said that although the last session of congress had authorized preliminary examinations and surveys of the rivers, nothing much can be accomplished this year. The $500,000 allocated to the war department for the flood control examinations and surveys for the current fiscal year, it was explained, would barely cover preliminary examinations. The purpose of the first survey is to determine whether a more detailed survey is justified.

HARDING HOTEL STOCK CHANGED

Par Value Reduced One-Half in Refinancing Move.

Stockholders of the New Hotel Co., which owns and operates the Harding hotel, in a special meeting at the hotel last night voted to reduce the par value of common stock from $100 to $50 in a refinancing move. The action, officials of the hotel said, has the effect of wiping out a deficit created in depression years and of making a surplus.

The change in par value will not effect the sale price of the stock in any way, since each share represents the same interest in the hotel as before, officials said.

Approximately 25 stockholders, more than two-thirds, were present.

SHERIFF ISSUES WARNING AGAINST "REEFER WEED"

Avoid Strangers Who May Be in Marihuana Growing Racket, Is Advice to Farmers of County.

Sheriff Fred F. Miller received a letter from the federal bureau of narcotics yesterday requesting his cooperation in enforcement of the marihuana tax act of 1937 which becomes effective on Oct. 1.

In connection with the request, Sheriff Miller today sounded a warning to farmers of Marion and vicinity to avoid all offers from strangers to grow unidentified crops on a share basis. He said he has received no reports of cultivation of the narcotic-producing plant in this county but stated it is possible it exists here.

How They Work

"The usual method of the dope buyers is to induce the farmer to grow the plant without letting the farmer know what it is for. Often they will have the crop grown in the middle of a large corn or wheat field so that it is concealed from officers who might be passing by," the sheriff said.

Marihuana is most commonly used in cigarets which when smoked produce a state of intoxication which often leads to criminal acts, the sheriff said. It is known by police as the "reefer" weed and the agent who sells the cigarets as the "reefer" man. The drug is habit forming.

Registration Required

The new law requires all persons who import, manufacture, produce, compound, sell, deal in or give away marihuana to register with their respective collectors of internal revenue and pay special taxes. Conviction carries a fine of not more than $2,000 or a prison term of not more than five years, or both. Ohio already has a uniform narcotic act which includes marihuana, the sheriff said.

The sheriff was given photostatic copies of the growing plant to aid him and his staff in identifying the weed when found. He has also been instructed in how to test cigarets for marihuana. The weed formerly was known as "loco" weed in the west where cattle would eat it and become crazed.

Your Health

Hiccoughing.

NOTHING IS more annoying and, if it persists, more alarming than to be the victim of a severe attack of hiccoughing. Occasionally we read of such cases which continue for several days or longer, but, fortunately, these are rare, decidedly unusual. Even when the symptom is mild it is a distressing complaint.

It is caused by a sudden sharp constriction of the diaphragm, which brings about an expulsion of air from the lungs. This produces the characteristic "burp" or "hic."

At some time or other most of us have suffered from this annoying experience. It usually disappears within a few minutes and the distress is quickly forgotten. But, as I have said, it may last for a longer period of time. In that event it may be a symptom of some serious internal disturbance, and its persistence should arouse suspicion of some organic disorder.

Hiccough may follow irritation of the "phrenic" nerve. The nerve with this funny name supplies the muscles of the diaphragm, the muscular structure which separates the abdominal cavity from the chest. The nerve may become irritated as a result of a severe fall, a blow, an infection or inflammation from any cause. The growth of a tumor may cause pressure upon the nerve.

Occasionally hiccough is one of the symptoms of some focal infection within the body. This may be from disease of the liver, gall bladder stomach, tonsils or teeth. It is especially prevalent among persons who are careless about their eating habits. Hasty eating and faulty chewing lead to gas and hiccough.

Any sudden distention of the stomach, with irritation of the diaphragm, will cause hiccough. For this reason it is a common occurrence in children who are careless in the choice of food and how they eat it. Sufferers from indigestion frequently suffer from hiccough.

Mild attacks of hiccough are unimportant, but, if the condition persists, it is necessary that your doctor be consulted. He will decide what to do.

Many forms of treatment and hundreds of suggestions are offered to the victim of hiccough. A few sips of water, inhaling fumes from a piece of horse radish, tickling the nose, slapping the back and other methods of procedure are often advised. These are successful provided the underlying cause of the hiccoughs is not an organic disorder.

WILD PIGEONS IN OHIO

Between 1870 and 1880 large numbers of wild pigeons were snared in nets in Central Ohio as they stopped in their migrations. The birds' nesting places were farther north but two "pigeon roosts" were known in Ohio. One was in Licking county and the other in the Scioto swamp, principally in Hardin county.

Many hunters went to these places in the nesting season to take the squab—young pigeons. These were easily caught by hand in the nests as the most desirable birds for table use were those yet unable to fly.

This taking of the young birds, accompanied by the disturbance of the nesting places, probably contributed as much to the extinction of the wild pigeon as did the snaring with nets during migration.

A loose leaf album has been invented to hold negatives from miniature cameras, a complete roll of 36 negatives being slipped into transparent, moisture and dust proof envelopes that form the pages.

Letters from Our Readers

VERDICT APPROVED.

Editor of The Star: Now that the smoke has all cleared away and we find that twelve good sound minded people said back night was as found out, to be legal, I hope that we may now go on and enjoy something that we like if we see fit to attend it. I am sure that it hurts a couple that just did not have it their way, but if we ever expect to have anything in this town besides Main and Center streets we must not rush our binoculars into places where decent and respectable folks go.

It was in my mind nothing short of disrespect for a prominent business man but a slam at the people as it placed them all as gamblers and I believe it was proven that some of those that were closely connected with those working for the city were in the theater. Of course I do not in any way blame the police force. They are like any of us, it was just a case of do what the boss says.

I can't understand why that after Mr. Planck had an understanding with the department and they could not say anything against it at that time and were asked not to raid if they thought it not legal but to advise him and he would stop it till it was proven otherwise why they had to pull such a boner.

If this was as stated in the paper a political move then I say politics has collected a bad smell.

It still remains within the rights of the people to comment on such cases and we elect those that rule but we must not let it be used to humiliate those that put a bit of brightness in our lives.

God gave each and every man a mind and a right to express it and I come under that category, and wish to say that the punk that cut out my last piece in The Star and wrote across the print "Boo" and at the top "How much did you get from the Palace for this?" If he will dust his brain I will try to blow this into it. I do not know Mr. Planck. I have never been in the show on bank night (as I happened to be away on those nights but have attended in other cities.) Please save your red pencil and come out in the paper like a man. We all like to hear comments of the other fellow and if you are the right kind of a sport you will answer as I do in the paper and not under a three-cent stamp.

Well anyway the jury said not guilty so now let's lay down the hammer and get down to going places and doing things and cut out trying to show the people we have a police force at the expense of decent and respectable business men.

VIEWS ON PENSIONS

Editor of The Star: As a citizen of Marion I believe it is wrong to have the citizens here or anywhere to tax the people to pay the firemen's and policemen's pension. It seems it would be better to use this money to buy school books for the school board to give to the children going to school.

Why should the poor wage earner who is not making as much money as the retired policeman or fireman who is getting more pension money be compelled to pay in this fund? This same wage earner is paying in the social security fund for his protection. If the police and firemen want a pension of their own they should draw up a plan with their state association and make it on the plans the same as the mailmen, railroad men and teachers have done, pay it out of their own earnings. Have it high enough so you will not have to take another man's job.

I think Mayor Smith and council are right in doing away with this donation, I would call it.

It is very nice for any able bodied man to retire after working a measly 20 or 25 years and then be appointed to some office or get another position which is paying more than the men he is working with and who are helping to pay his pension (or donation). Ask any railroad man how long he has worked and 85 per cent will tell you they have 20 years or more service and are satisfied to keep on working until they are 65 years of age or over. Of course if they are disqualified through sickness or any other cause they can retire without losing any annuity.

So men, get busy and get up a pension plan through your association that will take care of you and while you are at it take in all city employes the same as the teachers and railroad men have done.

What To Do-

If You Get Hay Fever

1. Go to your doctor and find out what's causing it. He'll scratch your skin and pour on a diluted solution of various pollens until the one irritating you shows itself by raising a mosquito-like bump.

2. Build up a resistance to the pollen by taking inoculations of it, weak at first but gradually strengthened, from two to four times a week. Must be done out of season to be effective.

3. If afflicted for the first time, inoculations won't help but you can get temporary relief by using one of the various nose inhalants your doctor will prescribe. An air filter in your bedroom window will keep out the pollen and help you get a night's sleep.

By The Associated Press

Dr. Beatrice Kesten, who suggests this treatment, says that inoculations have been 90 per cent successful.

They must be taken for at least three or four years in succession, however, to effect a permanent cure and some persons have to take them indefinitely, according to the doctor who is a hay fever expert on the research staff of the Columbia University Medial School in New York.

Once you're inoculated, you must come in contact every year with the pollen bothering you in order to stay immune.

Hay fever, which usually hits persons from the teens into the 30s or 40s, runs in families, says Dr. Kesten—allergic families, they're called.

Most persons start sniffling and sneezing about Aug. 15 and keep it up until the first heavy frost. Ragweed is the villain.

There are two earlier periods, however—April and May when the trees pollinate; June when the roses bloom. And some persons suffer from April to fall.

IT'S ODD But It's Science

By HOWARD W. BLAKESLEE
Associated Press Writer.

WOODS HOLE, Mass.—One human story which the wives don't believe is may be true scientifically.

It is the one about the golf course being cooler on a blistering hot day than staying at home in a chair. Some wives even worry.

How cool you feel, and even how safe you are in heat, depends partly on how fast your body loses heat. The story about the golf course gets support from experiments on heat loss, reported in the Collecting Net by Dr. Eugene F. Dubois, of Cornell Medical college and Dr. James D. Hardy, Russell Sage Institute of Pathology.

They were able for the first time to measure loss of heat by "convection," that is by a breeze. A breeze removes from 10 to 15 per cent of the body's heat.

But, with moderate exercise, this heat loss, from either wind or the body's own movement in air, may rise to 25 or 30 per cent. That's the extra 15 per cent coolness the golfer is talking about.

McGuire of Marion, who alleges he contracted silicosis while in the employ of the Osgood Co.; Mrs. Kathleen Walker of 261 Patterson street, who is seeking compensation for the death of Charles O. Walker, formerly employed by the state highway department; and Charles Browning of 539 Bennett street, injured while pulling a 400-pound cake of ice at the Hornell Ice Co.

A. G. Leonard of Columbus, assistant attorney general, represented the state insurance fund. George Pluchel is attorney for Mr. Browning. Paul D. Smith for Mr. McGuire and Peter Vacca of Columbus for Mrs. Walker.

In England, Where Birth Still Counts, Odds Are Against the Average Boy

NOT FOR JACK HAWKINS

No sons of average-income families are these young aristocrats playing rugby at Eton, best known of England's miscalled "public" schools. The lad looking at the camera, for instance, is Lord Lascelles, son of the Earl of Harewood and Britain's Princess Royal. At right he is shown in the tophat which is traditional with Eton boys.

* * *

This is the second in a series of six Associated Press articles examining, cinema-p, the average boy of 14 in Europe today—his prospects for the new school term—and for the future—and the age when, in America, he would this month be entering high school.

* * *

LONDON — Tow-headed Jack Hawkins, 14, typical English boy, returns to school this fall with the chances 1,000-to-1 against his getting to the top in life.

Jack (that's as good a name as any) probably doesn't know that, but those are the odds against him given by Professor John Hilton of Cambridge, who says attainment of the "reserved ranks of life" in England is an almost exclusive privilege of public school graduates.

And Jack, son of a lower middle class English family, doesn't go to public school. For England's public schools are not public at all, but high-tuition private institution attended by few but young aristocrats.

Figures Tell Jack's Fate

Backing up his odds against Jack, Professor Hilton says public school men in "reserved ranks" include 52 of 56 bishops, 19 of 24 deans, 122 of 156 county court judges and recorders, 152 of 210 civil servants paid more than $5,000 annually and 20 of 21 cabinet ministers.

To get to the top, he tells Jack: "You must have been at the right school and be entitled through life to wear the right school tie."

Others take the view, however, that there are more public school boys in high places than others because the public school boys just naturally were smarter than the others.

It also is pointed out that boys like Jack, in rare instances, can go through public schools on free scholarships.

State Supports Some Schools

But in England, where money comes to the masses in smaller lots and is spent more carefully than in the United States, Jack's father would have to have an income of more than $3,000 annually before he could send his non-scholarship sons to public schools. Jack's father doesn't.

For Jack there is reserved the state supported schools and the costs are considerably less than in the "public" schools.

By far the majority of boys like Jack are shunted off into state schools which prepare them for mechanical and clerical jobs, either professional or semi-professional in character.

Of May Quit School

Others are apprenticed to manufacturers or craftsmen, and there always is available the full-time, part-time and night vocational schools.

Jack is at cross roads. By this time he has been in school nine years, and the educational system of examinations has determined his degree of intelligence.

If he follows the majority he soon will quit school and go to work at what ever offers. Although the compulsory school age is 5 to 14, many leave earlier with permission.

Knows U. S. Through Movies

England's traditional middle course in foreign relations is reflected in the average Jack's outlook on other countries.

He regards the world with a comparatively unbiased eye. By training, however, he would sooner take up a career at home, or in some British colony than in a foreign country, and he probably will live and die in England or on land over which the Union Jack waves.

Jack gets his ideas of the United States from the movies and the penny press. He sees that country as a land of cowboys, Indians, gangsters, G-men, beautiful women and millionaires.

Who Said, "Good Old Winter Time"?

I Did....We Have Automatic GAS Heat In Our Home!

Winter need hold no fears of discomfort or inconvenience if you are planning to heat your home automatically with gas — the modern fuel. Gas heat provides June temperature in your home all winter long, and it's as carefree as an early summer day.

Doesn't this sound more pleasant than building fires — shoveling fuel and ashes — running up and down stairs to tend the old-fashioned furnace or boiler? Wouldn't clean gas heat do a lot to eliminate smoke and soot that continually sift through the house, smudging furniture, drapes, rugs and walls? Wouldn't it be great to enjoy even, healthful temperatures in your home, no matter how changing outside weather may be? And think how this controlled heat would eliminate colds and other winter ailments!

A phone call to The Gas Company will bring an experienced representative to tell you the reasonable cost of converting your heating plant into an automatic gas-fired unit. He will give a reliable estimate on the cost of heating your home with gas. You'll find that — all incidental costs considered — gas heat really costs less! Why not call for him at once?

This Janitrol gas-fired unit fits into your present furnace or boiler to make it an economic gas heating plan

Parole Victims.

CONSTANT censure of parole practices lends the impression that parole must be "wholly bad because no one ever says anything good about it. Nothing could be further from truth.

The idea of parole is sound. The practice of parole is corrupt. Where it is not actually corrupt, it is likely to be stupid, or perhaps haphazard. A good idea is being abused grievously.

Gov. Davey's promise that he will make a complete reorganization of the Ohio parole board and consolidate criminal agencies under a single strong non-political bureau is, therefore, genuinely important. This state has a chance to get somewhere with the parole idea if it can outsmart the politicians who misuse it.

It isn't the public which is the real victim of the dishonest and dumb things parole officials do. The public can take a lot of punishment without showing much effect. A paroled prisoner who gets into a jam always can be caught and sent back to prison, where parole may not be so easy next time.

The real victim of bad parole practices is the prisoner who could make something of himself if given a chance before a long sentence has squeezed all the ambition and self respect out of him. Every time an avoidable mistake is made, the parole system comes under a cloud of suspicion that darkens the prospects of thousands of non-chronic offenders whose entire hope of reclaiming their lives depends on its equitable and intelligent operation.

Anniversary.

SIX YEARS ago this week, a handful of Chinese and a handful of Japanese were engaged in a dangerous plot, each in a separate manner. It must have been something like this—

The Chinese were devising ways and means of blowing up a section of the Manchurian railway south of Mukden. The Japanese, who may or may not have known what the Chinese were up to, were preparing to use the explosion, when and if it happened, to seize Manchuria.

The railway was blown up. Japan used the explosion as an "incident" and began to invade Manchuria. Today, it controls the whole country, has changed its name and is exploiting it intensively.

Later, Japan was to attempt the same thing elsewhere in China, but that was not foreseen in 1931. Invasion of Manchuria was the modern world's first experience with the "incident" technique of invasion as perfected by the Japanese. By the time the spectators, including those in diplomatic departments, had found their wits enough to yell, "Robbery!" Manchuria was securely in Japan's hands and Italy was preparing to seize Ethiopia.

This week might be called the anniversary of the first big collapse of the dream of international security.

Front Line Neutrals.

AMERICANS hope their countryman, Harold Dahl, who has been traded for one of their own aviators by the Spanish rebels, will quit the war business before he gets shot down again. They wish he and all other Americans flying in the Spanish and Chinese wars would come home and go on home relief if they need funds so badly.

Dahl's wife, appealing to Gen. Franco for her husband's release, explained he "was and is neutral." That must have sounded like a bad joke to the hard-bitten rebel leader. For if an American trying to kill rebels from an airplane is neutral, then Franco's Moors, who are professional killers, must be neutral too.

There's no way to get rid of professional soldiers and indentured ones, except to kill them. Most of them are fully aware of what they're up against: it's not neutrality they must worry about, but one of the oldest and most universal laws of mankind—thou shalt not kill. A professional soldier, without even the emotion of patriotism to comfort him, goes to death with no more glory than any other murderer.

Not Wisely, But Too Well.

ORGANIZATION of a British society for the defense of the Duke of Windsor—The Society of Octavians—is a straw in the wind that won't tickle Britain's politicians and prelates.

For it is proof that one effect of the way they John Bulled through last winter's monarchial crisis is to make their former king seem to need popular defense against their machinations.

British ideals of fair play plainly have been suspended for the purpose of dealing "realistically" with Edward. The apparent aim of the statesmen and churchmen is not only to remove him from the scene, but to persecute him by snubs and restrictions. That's dangerous monkey business, even when it's done in the name of empire.

If it were not for the duke's patriotism his persecutors at this point might have three instead of two, bears by the tail: the Mediterranean mess, the Chinese mess and a mess of their own creation in a deposed king with an aggressive following at home wanting to reinstate him.

Today in Washington

Senator Black's Klan Connections May Become Campaign Issue in 1938.

By DAVID LAWRENCE

WASHINGTON, Sept. 14—The revelation that Senator Hugo Black was a full-fledged member of the Ku Klux Klan is a political scandal of such far-reaching possibilities that it may furnish a nationwide issue for the 1938 congressional campaign.

President Roosevelt, who does things on impulse and makes decisions with hair-trigger speed, didn't ask anybody in congress whether the appointment of Senator Black would be wise. He didn't seek to find out what the truth was of the oft-repeated story that Mr. Black had been elected to the senate with the support of the Ku Klux Klan.

Now the publication of a facsimile letter, in which Senator Black is represented as having been a member of the Klan, puts the members of the United States senate who voted for Mr. Black's confirmation in an awkward position. A majority of them refused to permit the nomination to be investigated by the judiciary committee, even though Senator Burke of Nebraska told the senate he had witnesses in Washington ready to testify as to Mr. Black's membership in the Klan.

The reason why the senators refused is that they frankly did not believe Mr. Black had been a member. Senator Borah, for instance, went on the assumption that Mr. Black's personal denial was sufficient. This denial, however, was supposed to have been given orally and it is not stated whether Mr. Black said he had never been a member or whether he was not a member at the time he spoke to Mr. Borah.

In any event, the question affects 20,000,000 Catholics, about 14,000,000 Negroes and about 5,000,000 Jews. For the Ku Klux Klan has and is a movement which has for its object discrimination against Catholics, Negroes and Jews.

Should Clear Question

If Mr. Black was never a member, he should say so publicly and then the proof will be as to whether the signature on the letter is or is not bona fide.

If Mr. Black was indeed a member of the Klan and subsequently resigned, he ought to ask Mr. Roosevelt to withdraw the nomination to be supreme court justice. For it is doubtful whether the President knew Mr. Black had been a member of the Klan. If the fact of membership is established, Mr. Roosevelt is going to be under pressure to ask Mr. Black to resign.

Technically, of course, Mr. Black has been appointed for life, and he need not resign if he does not wish to do so. But if it became known that President Roosevelt does not want Mr. Black to sit on the bench, it is possible that the supreme court would take cognizance of another angle of the Black controversy, namely that which relates to his eligibility.

Under the terms of the Constitution itself, no member of the senate or house is eligible for appointment to any civil office in which the "emoluments" have been increased during the time the senator or representative served in congress. "Emoluments" have been construed to mean any advantages or benefits. The congress in March, 1937, passed a law increasing the emoluments of the supreme court by providing retirement benefits.

How to get such a question before the court? Already one lawyer has filed a petition asking the court to rule on Mr. Black's eligibility. The case is unprecedented. When the supreme court meets next month, the petition doubtless will be pressed.

Mr. Black Refuses Comment

Meanwhile, the absence of Mr. Black, who is traveling in Europe, makes it difficult to get all sides of the controversy. He himself refused to give the New York Times correspondent in Paris any information. This is strange. For if Mr. Black is not a member of the Klan or has never been, he ought not hesitate to say so. Failure to say anything at all may be construed by many people as an admission that there is substance to the charges.

There will be some persons, of course, who are in sympathy with the tenets of the Ku Klux Klan and who will insist that President Roosevelt should have a Klansman on the supreme court because the Jews and Catholics are already represented there. But this is not the basis on which supreme court justices have been chosen in the past by presidents of the United States. Incidentally, the Negro press lately have been agitating for the appointment of a Negro to membership on the supreme court, and there can be no doubt that, from a legal knowledge standpoint, there are some Negroes much better qualified than Senator Black.

Politically, the injection of a race antagonism issue is always to be deplored, but where a prima facie case has been made, tending to show that a man nominated and confirmed to be associate justice of the supreme court was of such narrow mind and of such intolerant attitude as to join an organization based on religious antagonism, it becomes important to have such an issue explored to its utmost. If the revelations are wrong, then Mr. Black can easily disprove them by a frank statement. If they are right, his moral eligibility to remain on the supreme court becomes an open question. Likewise, if Mr. Roosevelt plans to make the enlargement of the supreme court an issue next year, he will find himself confronted with a barrage of inquiries from racial groups as to whether he wants six more justices in order to appoint six members of the Ku Klux Klan or six men free from religious and racial prejudice. That will become more of an issue than the matter of the size of the court or its previous decisions.

Thick Hide Necessary

Generals Are Advised To Be Thoroughly Prepared Before Starting In To Debunk the Army.

By PRESTON GROVER

WASHINGTON, Sept. 14—Advice to generals: Before you begin to debunk the army, be sure you have a thick hide.

Latest of the army debunkers was British Brigadier General Frank P. Crozier. He wrote a book or two, and in them he said things about the conduct of warriors and war that made his military colleagues writhe and scream.

General Crozier's stories were not of bravery, but of panic and cowardice. He told of shooting a British officer during the World war because the man began to run under fire and might have caused the troops to break in panic.

Wales rose from its coal mines and farms to bellow at him when he said a Welsh regiment fought bravely during the war because it was less afraid of the enemy than of being shot by its own officers. Again, he said, it was necessary to have British troops fire on Portuguese allies who broke under German fire.

Crozier's friends lifted their noses at him as if he smelled bad. A few days ago he died, before the brigades of patriots really had a go at him.

Three Stand Out

In recent years the United States has had three outstanding army debunkers, General William Mitchell, General Smedley D. Butler and General Johnson Hagood. Mitchell is dead. The other two are doing nicely.

Mitchell began by an attempt at debunking the navy as a first line of defense. He said the navy in future wars would flee for cover like rats to escape bombing planes. He offered to show the navy how a good bombing plane could sink a naval vessel. The offer wasn't accepted.

He became so furiously critical of his superiors for their failure to recognize the air force as he thought it ought to be that he ultimately was court martialed and suspended for five years on half pay. He resigned but continued to bombard the military management verbally and in many published articles.

His old friend, the late Senator Joe Robinson, tried to get him retirement pay but Mitchell died without it.

Butler Entertains Senate

General Smedley D. Butler of the marines had his turn. While the military appropriations were swelling toward the billion dollar level, he said invasion of this country was "impossible." There aren't ships enough, he said, to bring to American shores a landing party big enough to beat us.

He also took time out to titillate the senate two years ago with a story of the "battle of Russell's run." Butler said General Russell, who was up for confirmation by the senate as marine commandant, had been frightened with his battalion almost into a panic at Vera Cruz in 1914 "by the appearance of a lone Mexican with a white flag."

General Russell denied that, was confirmed, and Butler and his story were taken under fire.

General Hagood long has criticized the army's service of supply as antiquated, and cumbersome. Soldierly shanks quivered at his proposal that the next war be fought in overalls because they could be supplied quickly in quantity.

He capped his criticism by referring to WPA funds as "stage money," and soon afterward concluded he would be more comfortable out of the army than in it.

Thick, too, must be the skin of the gentleman who takes a fling at veterans' benefits. So far only youngsters have done that very much. Remember the "Veterans of Future Wars?" and the "Gold Star Mothers of Future Wars?"

Auditoriums.

There's a boom in municipal auditoriums—not an echo but a boom. Fifty cities, ranging in size from a few hundred to a few hundred thousand, have built new auditoriums within the last two years.

Information about the auditoriums, compiled by International City Managers association, is as follows:

PWA grants covered one third of the cost in 18 cities; the remainder was covered by bond issues. Total cost in 11 cities under 10,000 population was about $90,000. Houston, Tex., built an auditorium seating $1,377,000; Kansas City $6,500,000.

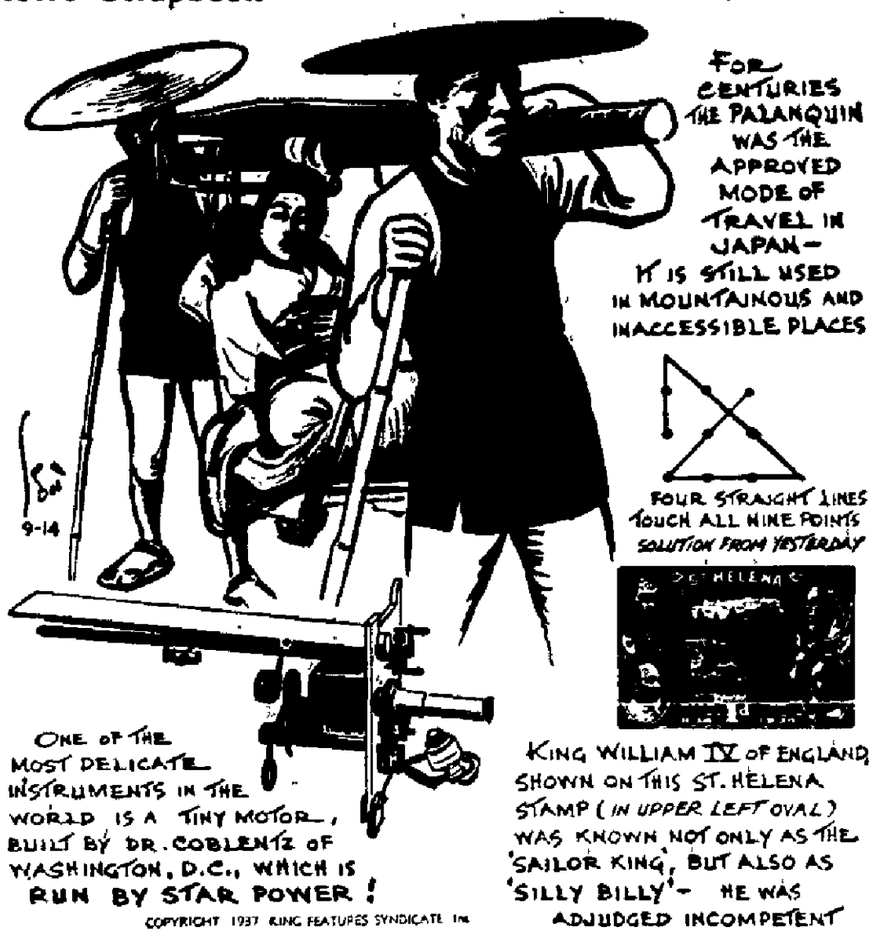

None of the 18 cities which described their projects intends to operate the auditoriums at a profit, but all hope to meet operating expense. San Jose, Calif., spent $15,196 the first eight months to operate its auditorium and received $11,946. Shawnee, Okla., the first year of operation, received $3,557 and spent $3,180.

Rate policies vary. In some cities, 10 per cent of gross receipts up to a fixed amount and 5 per cent of the excess is taken, besides minimum rates.

Batting Over .400

A good deal has been said about the bumper crops in the fields this summer but we don't recall many references to the fact that the bounty of nature is being manifested in the hen fruit department as well as the corn, wheat, and cotton divisions. Possibly we've just overlooked such references; we haven't been following the poultry news as avidly as we should, here of late.

Anyway, the point is that the hens have been fairly outdoing themselves during the last four months. In that period, department of agriculture economists say, there have been more eggs laid per hen than at any time in the 13 years the department has been keeping records. It seems that the hens, taken as a whole, have been batting over .400 this month. (Yet pikers like Gehringer, DiMaggio and Medwick get all the headlines!) That is to say, the average 100 hens on farms this month produced more than 40 eggs daily, compared with 36 last year, a long time average of 37, and previous peaks of 38.

The d. a. economists undertake to account for this by vague references to large hatchings and last year's drought. Being neither an economist nor a farmer, nor yet a hen, we don't quite follow that explanation. But we have one of our own. It is that hens are notoriously perverse critters that invariably insist on laying the most eggs when eggs are cheap.—Cedar Rapids Gazette.

Ban Put on Gossip

Step Taken by German Nazi Army Command in Effort To Halt Spread of Espionage.

This is the first of three articles showing how the German army is waging war against espionage.

* * *

BY PIERRE J. HUSS
International News Service Correspondent

BERLIN, Sept. 13—War on gossip and loose talk by soldiers and civilians going hand in hand with espionage has been launched by the German army to the slogan of "Fight That Murderous Word!"

It is pointed out that general staffs seldom instruct their intelligence operators to go straight into foreign lands and ferret out closely guarded state and military secrets but instead expect them to gather hundreds of minor bits of information for gradual piecing together into a composite picture.

On that basis, German army authorities argue, it is highly important for soldiers and everyone to refrain from gossiping at beer tables and at home over everyday affairs in the army.

1918 Example Cited

The most tragic example of what careless talk can do is found in failure of the great German Champagne offensive in 1918. German military authorities claim to have secured confirmation of the fact that despite tremendous efforts by the German command to keep plans of the projected onslaught silent, the French and British Intelligence service on July 4, 1918, turned over to their own commands the following gossip picked up from German Red Cross nurses in a Frankfurt-main hospital. "The German army will attack in the Champagne July 15."

Similar talk in German-occupied cities in Belgium was picked up by Allied espionage July 7, 8, 9 and 10, some even giving the time of "zero hour."

World War Turning Point

As is known, the German offensive of 1918 crumbled quickly with the loss of tens of thousands and three days later Marshal Foch caught the German army completely by surprise with a carefully prepared counter attack, which definitely turned the tide in favor of the Allies. Not a whisper, the Germans point out, had foreshadowed that counterattack.

Giving a more recent example of carelessness on the part of a German soldier, subsequently heavily fined on a charge of treason through thoughtlessness, is the case of Rifleman R—, who became engaged about two years ago to a German-Swiss girl living in Switzerland.

During a march through the town where he was stationed, a letter received some days before from his girl dropped out of his pocket and was picked up by a passerby. Turned over to the military authorities for return to its owner, it was found to contain the following sentence as written by his girl. "How can you be so silly and write me that preparations are under way there to march into the Rhineland. What if somebody had opened your letter on this side—you probably would have to go to war."

Friendship Proves Costly

In a recent case on record a member of the tank corps received a prison sentence and was deprived of all army honors after he had trusted too much in "an old friend." This latter, after having vanished for some years, suddenly sought out this tank soldier of his schooldays and confided in him that he wanted to volunteer for service in the same outfit.

As he wore an insignia of the Nazi party, he wormed his way easily into the soldier's confidence and the latter, in his eagerness to coach his friend sufficiently to enable him to pass the applicant's examination, spilled several secrets on new fighting apparatus for tanks just introduced.

A few days later the "old friend" was arrested in the act of passing on his information to a foreign courier and not only his career but that of the talkative soldier were at an end.

These and other examples are being used to good advantage by army authorites to overcome the leakage into foreign countries of military information they want to keep secret and also to reduce the guillotine's toll of German lives as well as the rollcall on prison lists.

In New York

By O. O. McINTYRE

NEW YORK, Sept. 14—Manhattan has an unusual number of sartorial eccentrics among its celebrities. And as in all densely populated centers, such dressy oddos create little stir. Nobody pays much attention to what the other fellow wears. He is far too interested in himself.

Whitney Warren, the architect, clings to a wide black Stetson on all occasions, although an otherwise up-to-date dresser. George White, of the theater, sticks to his midget bow ties and dark serge suits and can rarely be induced to don evening clothes.

Hal Phyfe, the handsome photographer, has worn Indian moccasins since boyhood. And he, incidentally, regarded by del sarte disciples as the most accomplished of graceful walkers. Lucius Beebe, the journalist from Boston's Back Bay, wears evening clothes of slightly purplish tinge.

Joe Laurie Jr. is known for his baggy cap worn half aback. Franklin P. Adams is a passenger for bright yellow four-in-hands and Arthur William Brown started the blue-collar-to-match-the-eyes vogue. And Lee Shubert clings to white edging on his vest upon auspicious occasions.

Joe Louis may not be the most popular champion but it's generally agreed he will rank with Gene Tunney in financial astuteness. When Tunney feathered his nest at the jump of the gun he was bedeviled by lawsuits that proved a constant drain. Louis's fortune is now edging the million. Reliable advices are he is possessed of something more than $600,000 and it has been scattered three ways—government bonds, annuities and trust funds. Sparkling rather feeble to most tooks he shows alertness about the dollar. Many believe his next championship fight will be worth $750,000, which will make him richest athlete in America.

Restaurant owners have a horror of Death stalking a feast. A sudden passing in a well-crowded restaurant, if generally known, wreaks more than temporary havoc. Even old established patrons brushed by such tragedy, may not come back. A demise in a dining room, if not concealed, slows up business for several days. So in every well organized restaurant captains and waiters are expertly trained for such emergencies. When a patron slumps at his table from any cause he is immediately propelled to the kitchen where medical help may be summoned, and if death has been a visitant the body may be removed through back doors without disturbing diners. Many deaths in restaurants have thus been glossed over, so diners believed that a patron had merely dined and wined beyond capacity.

Shiela Barrett is one of the few women who can give a perfect imitation of a male drunk—so creditably that it is impossible to believe she is not sloshed to the gills. To my mind no raconteur, however, has yet touched Jim Barton in his delineation of the Irishman staggering from saloon to saloon to show his mad dog bite. He acquires an imaginary jag before your eyes. Hugh Herbert, of the movies, is no slouch portraying the amiable stew, either.

New York beaches have had two shark scares this summer, reviving again the moot question: Does a shark bite a living person? Most great authorities say no, but several of repute claim to have found indisputable evidence. But this fact remains: All the evidence is second hand. No one has been found who actually saw a shark attack and bite a swimmer. William Beebe, who has gone into the subject exhaustively, shows his contempt for the theory by going into shark-infested waters to splash about whenever in such areas. The shark is vulture of the deep and lives on carrion. Human legs and arms have been found in their stomachs by fishermen, but these are believed from those drowned.

In crossing the Gulf of Mexico from Key West to Galveston one summer our slim passenger list on a listing tub was reputed followed by sharks. Most of us sat for hours in deck chairs, scanning the water with binoculars. Two in our party reported seeing them several times. Later they confessed they were just trying to crack the tedium of a stupid journey. One of the strangest things in the world is that you cannot get people to tell the truth regarding anything concerning fish.

Fix in a Fix

EVER since he has been old enough to realize his predicament, Robert Fix has been appearing before congressional committees to plead his case. This is his story.

He claims to be a descendant of the Choctaw Indians, and he has a stack of documents and affidavits to prove it. His great grandmother, he says, marched overland from Mississippi to Oklahoma in the enforced migration of the Choctaws. She had several children.

One of her daughters married a Civil war soldier out in Kansas. She had three children, one was murdered. The children were abandoned and made their way back to Oklahoma, where they lived with relatives among the Choctaws. One of them, Fix claims, was his mother.

In 1907, when Fix was of high school age, a government commission held a hearing to determine who were Choctaw Indians and who weren't. Fix was left off the list. He has been fighting to get on it ever since. So far nothing has been done. Neither the government nor the Choctaw tribe, it appears, is anxious to classify him.

Why does Robert Fix want to become a Choctaw?

He's perfectly frank about it. Indians on the tribal roll receive dividends from tribal property. In some tribes the kitty runs into the millions. In other tribes, property has been divided up. So those off the roll would like to get on in order to establish a claim against the government.

There are hundreds of Indians like Fix. The Klamath Indians in Washington have valuable timber holdings and pay fat fees to attorneys in Washington, D. C., merely to draw up timber sale contracts.

It is, of course, very complicated. Because Indians kept no birth records. Among themselves they know who's who, so for a lone Indian outsider to try to scramble into the family tree is a hard job.

The only witnesses are other Indians. It stands to reason that where there's money or property to be split up, the fewer the merrier.

Today in Ohio History

Although Ohioans generally opposed the Mexican war as one of conquest on the part of the United States, under the pressure of the slave powers working for more slave territory, they supported the government loyally after they found themselves unable to prevent the war.

Ulysses S. Grant, then a young lieutenant in the army, expressed himself later as believing the American cause was unjust in that instance. Despite his opinion, however, he fought for his country and was present when Mexico City surrendered to Gen. Winfield Scott, on Sept. 14, 1847.

It will bind the 17 states to supervise native citizens paroled from prisons in other states. The commission sponsored the pact, contending it would eliminate "sundown" paroles in which out-of-state prisoners are paroled with the understanding they will cross the state line by sunset.

CHAPTER TWENTY-SIX

Following Eyster's Clue

[illegible] used to go to a fine [illegible] house on Charles [illegible]" Eyster said "Sometimes [illegible] him go in. Sometimes [illegible] up coming out I [illegible] who no went to see [illegible] thrown out when I [illegible] ask. I wasn't the kind [illegible] give who could go in [illegible] But you could'

[illegible] sounded like a valuable [illegible] 'What's the number [illegible]?' he asked

[illegible] Charles Street Avenue"

[illegible] made a mental note of the [illegible] He took out his pipe and [illegible] it "Stopped up Got [illegible] to clean it with?"

"[illegible] nail' Eyster said, grinning [illegible] find it on the bureau" [illegible] he got his pipe going, Neill [illegible] Well I must be moving on"

"Don't go pleaded Eyster "Tell [illegible] about Fanning. Did he [illegible] coming" Did he say anything?"

[illegible] fierce warned Neill to string [illegible] along 'Don't like to talk about [illegible]' he muttered

A look of doubt appeared in Eyster's face 'It was you smoked Fanning wasn't it?'

"You wouldn't expect me to admit it in so many words, would you?" Neill answered grinning

Eyster's face cleared "No' No' You don't have to admit anything to me, fellow' You're all right' You're a grand guy!'

Neill went downstairs rubbing his lip The theory that he had so hopefully erected on the way up was already tottering But it had not fallen. He was far from convinced that Eyster had not shot Fanning.

He found Bonniger in the little office back of the store engulfed in the detail of his job Messengers were continually coming and going, reports arriving from the local search parties and by phone from the state police in other counties Bonniger was making arrangements to have the harbor dragged for a body.

Neill's whole attitude toward the case had changed now Satisfied that Janet was in no way implicated, he was as keen to solve the mystery as Bonniger was Also, now he could let his real liking for Bonniger come out.

"Look, Mark," he said 'If we could find out what Fanning was up to in Baltimore, it would be a long step forward It would lead us direct to the solution"

"Well, I'm not sure I can go as far as that with you, Bonniger said, smiling at his enthusiasm 'But at that, its important I have a man on the job but he hasn't got anywhere"

"Suppose I go up to town and look into it, outside of what anybody else is doing,' said Neill "Fanning had become a kind of public figure and I ought to be able to pick up something."

"Certainly is good of you to suggest it" said Bonniger "I hate to cut in on your vacation"

"Not at all," said Neill 'I'm interested in this"

"All right I'll give you a police car and a constable to drive you Get something to eat first."

The Stoop-Shouldered Man

Neill ordered an early lunch in the hotel, and sat down to eat it in such a position that he could watch all who came and went in the lobby adjoining It was a curiously assorted crowd—villagers, county people, newspaper men and plain jays

Finally his search was rewarded Through the door from outside came a great hulking figure with a head disproportionately small, and repulsive flattened features. As soon as Neill laid eyes on him he guessed that this was his man When the milling crowd opened sufficiently for him to get a look at his feet he saw crumbs of loose earth clinging to the big shoes Then he was sure.

The man pushed through to the desk to ask a question and afterwards turned to enter the bar on the other side where beer and soft drinks were sold. When he presented his back Neill received another shock He had seen that back before, with shoulders so heavy they were bowed under their own weight, letting the arms hang down in front like an ape's The stoop-shouldered man! Here was the substance of the shadow that had dogged Neill from the start.

He had not yet spotted Neill A solitary, sullen man He spoke to nobody and when others good-naturedly joshed his size, he made believe not to hear. He drank his beer alone Probably playing a lone hand, Neill figured Eyster knows him, but he is in terror of him. Certainly it must have been one or another of these two who had shot Fanning.

When he had finished eating, Neill strolled out and paused at the desk. "Wickesy,' he asked "who is the big fellow at the bar—the stoop-shouldered man?"

"That's the guy you was asking about this morning Ira Buckless is the name."

"When did he come?"

"Late Tuesday night."

"How did he get to Absalom's?"

"I couldn't tell you, mister. I just see him walk in the door." The hotel keeper's face sharpened with curiosity. "Why do you ask?"

"Oh, nothing. Thought I had seen him before somewhere."

As Neill made his way to the door, Buckless happened to turn and their eyes met. An ugly look came into the big man's face; hatred and defiance. That look said: Well you know me and I know you! What are you going to do about it? And Neill had to take it. He and Janet were in this man's power.

He paused on the porch to think things through. He was not so keen to go to Baltimore Still, he thought, it's clear that Buckless isn't afraid of me. He's not going to run away. I'll only be gone a few hours and I may be able to bring back the proof I need He went down the steps

A Rich Old Lady.

At two o'clock Neill was deposited at the door of a handsome modern apartment house on Baltimore's finest street. The doorman and the elevator boy were negroes Neill showed them the photographs of Fanning, but they sneak their heads Never had seen such a person they said After all, the photographs of a dead man do not convey much

"I know he was a frequent visitor to somebody in this house," said Neill "Picture a man six feet two in height, slim and broad shouldered, black hair and eyes, rosy saith very fine looking. Always elegantly dressed, fond of unusual shirts and cravats"

The two negroes glanced at each other, grinning 'Miss Rayner's friend," they said

'Who is Miss Rayner?"

"Don't you know Miss Emma Rayner, boss Everybody know her One of the richest women in Baltimore She is real old now, and never goes out no more." They looked at the photographs again "That's the gentleman what come to see her all right, but he looks different when he's dead."

"Well, most of us do,' said Neill "What name did he give when he came here?"

"Didn't give no name"

"Don't you have to send the names up?"

"Yes sir boss But the first time he come somebody brought him, and after that we was told to show him up whenever he come"

"What other gentlemen callers has Miss Rayner had recently?"

"Nobody but her lawyer, Mr. Osgood and her agent, Mr Barney"

Neill made a memo "Well, show me up now," he said

The negroes hesitated, but he faced them down. The door of Miss Rayner's apartment was opened by a neat colored maid 'Do Miss Rayner know you?" she asked

"No."

"Taint no use then. Miss Rayner see no gentlemen callers she don't know."

"Tell her it is somebody from Mr Prescott Fanning"

She presently returned saying 'Please to step this way, sir"

Neill was introduced to an immense living room crowded from end to end with the furnishings and gimcracks that old ladies like to gather around them Though it was a fine June day all the windows were closed and there was a little wood fire burning. At first he thought he was alone in the room, but presently he distinguished a tiny figure buried in a deep chair before the fire She looked about 80, but her sunken cheeks were bravely painted and she wore an elaborately curled auburn wig

"You come from Mr. Fanning?" she said eagerly "I was expecting to hear from him"

Neill was considerably taken aback, because she spoke of Fanning in the present tense. "He was a friend of yours?" he stammered

"I know him, certainly What word have you brought me?"

This was uncanny "How long have you known him?" asked Neill, sparring for time.

"Oh, several months," she said impatiently. "Whats that got to do with it?'

"Who introduced you to him?"

Miss Rayner sat up 'Young man, I don't know you. I don't propose to be cross-examined by a stranger in my own house' Who are you and what do you want?"

The packet of bills that Neill flung in the river turns up, tomorrow.

Marriage Meddlers

BY ADELE GARRISON

Hospital Conference Interrupted by Mary's Note.

MISS ALLEN, Queen Olga's nurse, had something of the attitude of a stag at bay' as she stood just inside her patient's hospital room holding a florist's box in one hand and a note in the other

You must pardon me Queen Olga said sweetly but with the same air of condescension she had used toward the nurse when she had first dismissed the woman from the room "You, of course, did the right thing in bringing us the messages from Miss Veritzen. And now, you are excused again Please keep a sharp lookout for any other messages, and wait for the call I shall give when my guests leave in a few minutes"

Note From Mary

Lillian and I stepped forward simultaneously and while Lillian took the box the nurse had said was for the patient, I retrieved the note which Mary had sent to me

Then, the nurse was gone, and with the conventional permission from Queen Olga Lillian undid the florist's box while I read Mary's hastily scrawled note, first to myself and then aloud

"Dear Auntie Madge" the note began

Sorry to interrupt the conference, but I've just thought of something vital As you know, I'm going to tell Father Veritzen you and Aunt Lillian took us by surprise this morning with your call and that I tried to get you to stay for luncheon but you could not because of a previous appointment.

Now he knows that neither of you ever went to see a sick friend at a hospital or anywhere else for that matter without lugging along an acre, more or less, of flowers And, of course, we all know you would have brought them if you'd had the slightest idea you were going to see her majesty

Flowers Her Idea

"So, in order to preserve the verities I've bought a box of posies in which I suggest you two enclose cards if you've brought any with you If not, there are some blank cards from the florist inside the box But if my revered father-in-law sees them, the illusion of a visit instead of a response to a summons will be preserved. N'est ce pas"

"Incidentally, be sure you carry this letter away with you, and destroy it at home I don't think even the ashes ought to be floating around here

"All my love,

'MARY"

"P S For the love heaven, don't stay over time!"

Lillian had the flower box open by the time I had finished reading the note aloud, and Queen Olga was exclaiming over the beauty and profusion of the roses and snapdragons Mary had chosen But she shook her head when Lillian asked if she wanted them put into containers

Mary Complimented

"No, we haven't time,' she said. "Just put your cards into the box. After you go, I'll have Miss Alden attend to them But wasn't it astute of Mary to think of all this?"

"Mary's always there with the lightning brain flashes," Lillian said. "Give me your card, Madge, and write something on it from both of us I'll add my name to yours, but remember to make the message formal. Phil does not yet know that we've taken down our back hair and are calling each other by our first names."

She laughed merrily at Queen Olga's bewildered expression.

"That's a half-century-old American idiom she said, and then she took my card glanced at what I had written and put it into the florist's box after fishing out and putting into her purse the blank cards Mary had provided

"And now," she said going back to her chair 'what is this most important thing you wish to discuss?"

Queen Olga's eyes flashed

"It's about my daughter," she said 'I cannot permit Philip Veritzen's meddling with her life, even if I am eternally indebted to him for not only her life but my own"
